God's work at creation is an ongoing process

By WILLIAM L. TRIMYER
A CREATIVE GOD
Lesson for September 4, 1983
Bible Study Passages: Genesis 1:1; Psalms 19:1-6; Acts 17:24-28; Romans 1:20
INTRODUCTION

Whenever I stand at the ocean's edge or at the foot of one of Virginia's beautiful mountains, I am reminded of God's creative power. I am also reminded daily that God's creations are beautiful and useful. His presence in the created order is unmistakable. We do not have to look very far to see God's handiwork. A golden sunrise or sunset declare the maker's sense of beauty. The beasts of the field and the harvest's golden grain declare the Maker's sense of provision. Everywhere we turn we may witness the Lord's handiwork.

We may think that creation came to an abrupt halt following the Genesis description of a six day work week. We would be mistaken, however, to believe that creation was completed thousands of years ago. The act of creation is an on-going process. We can see this in the volcanoes, stars, and other changes in the environment. God is still at work in creating his world and his people.

My son has a sign in his room that reads, "Be patient with me; God is not finished with me yet." It's true. God is not finished with you or me. He is still at work in us, molding us into his image. We are participants with him in that creative process.

IN THE BEGINNING (Genesis 1:1)

If we believe the world had a beginning it naturally follows that we believe in a God who initiated the process. Evolutionary thinkers disavow that a God of any sorts is behind the creation. Those who refute evolution seem to ignore the idea that God could, by his own choosing, create through an evolutionary process. God is not limited in power to bring about his desires and plans.

Genesis reads, "In the beginning . . ." The early Hebrews affirmed God's authority in the creation of the world. The Hebrews also acknowledged that God made all things and was before all things. The Hebrew writers were clear in their understanding that God and nature are not co-equal, that is, God is over and above the natural world. When we look at an ocean, tree or star we are not looking directly at God; rather, we are looking at his handiwork.

SHOUTING GOD'S HANDIWORK (Psalms 19:1-6; Acts 17:24-28)

When the Psalmist looked up into the heavens on a clear, moonlit night, he praised the handiwork of the Creator. The earth's rotation upon its axis is predictable and punctual. We can count on the ordered movement of the earth, the warm rays of the sun, moonbeams from the moon, and the ever rolling surf. We can also count upon God to be present to his people.

The Apostle Paul was a fervent preacher. When he preached to the pagan Athenians he spoke to them about the supremacy of God in all the universe. These pagans had so many gods that they made a monument to an unknown god." Paul impressed upon his pagan hearers that God could not be enshrined in marble or bronze. Paul did not complete his message to the Athenians until he proclaimed the resurrected Christ.

IGNORANCE IS INEXCUSABLE (Romans 1:20)

The Roman letter represents Paul's theological statement upon the atoning work of Christ.Paul argues that no one is excused from unbelief because the visible evidences of God are so readily seen in the universe. The complete revelation of God was made known when Christ was born, was crucified, was buried, and resurrected from the tomb.

Many evidences abound of God's presence and power in the world. We see him behind the wisdom of creation, behind the formation and birth of a baby, behind the heavens above, and even in the faces of those who suffer.

St. Luke Baptist Church

Aug. 7 was a great and happy day for members of St. Luke Baptist Church. The annual homecoming day was celebrated by a huge crowd. The pastor, Rev. R. R. Jones presented a thought-laden message. The Young Adult Choir provided splendid music. The Rev. Alvin Jones assisted in the service. The offering was good.

The Rev. Robertson was in charge of the 3 p.m. service. His adult and Junior Choirs, from his church in Richmond, were with him and delivered soul-stirring music. The Rev. Robertson delivered an inspiring message on "the handwriting on the wall."

A very appetizing dinner was served by the food committee of the church. Mrs. Louise Canada was hostess for the occasion. After sharing the fellowship of friends and relatives, all returned home feeling rewarded.

Members of a different church were featured each night of the week's revival services. The Rev. James Franklin was evangelist for the week. He was a powerful speaker, delivering great messages each night. Miss Cyble Franklin, daughter of the Rev. Franklin, played great piano selections preceding the message each night. Attendance was excellent, and the crowds enjoyed the nightly messages and music.

Regular preaching and the baptizing of 11 persons were featured Sunday, Aug. 21. The Rev. Jones delivered a great message about the mysterious movements of God. The Adult Choir delivered the music.

Mrs. Issie Bell Jones is still a patient in Lynchburg General Hospital. We pray for her comfort and quick recovery.

Mary Walker

County gets extra funding

Mary Walker, co-supervisor of the Federal Emergency Management Agency Funds, Appomattox Department of Social Services, announces that Appomattox County has received a $4,000.00 FEMA supplement.

According to Walker, these reallocated funds will provide services to the unemployed and other needy citizens in the county.

FEMA monies are sub-contracted by the Appomattox Department of Social Services to Appomattox Baptist Association under the administration and guidance of The Reverend Melvin Winters (352-5806) and to the Appomattox Chapter of NAACP under the administration and direction of Mr. Herbert Fleshman (352-8310).

FEMA funds may be used to provide emergency food and shelter until September 30, 1983.

Miss Walker, a native of Appomattox County and resident of the Hixburg area, a graduate of Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, North Carolina and Senior Eligibility Worker with the Appomattox Department of Social Services currently serves as Supervisor with Medicaid, State and Local Hospitalization, Emergency Fuel Assistance and General Relief. Miss Walker also assists with Aid to Dependent Children Assistance. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Walker.

Persons having questions concerning FEMA funding or the other public assistance programs may contact Miss Walker or Ms. Eva Moore, Social Work Supervisor at 352-7125.

Homecoming scheduled

By MRS. CATHERINE HASKINS

"For the Lord knowth the way of the righteous, but the way of the ungodly shall perish." Psalm 1:6

Homecoming will be held at the Alabama Baptist Church on September 4. Prayer service will begin at 11:30. Preaching service begins at 11:45. The Rev. C. L. Elliott is pastor of the church. Dinner will be served following the morning service.

At 3 p.m. Gospel Singing will feature the Holiness Gospel Singers, along with the Gospel Quintet and the Gospel Crowns of Naruna.

We are praying for the sick and shut-ins. Our sympathy goes out to those families who have lost loved ones. May God bless each and everyone of you.

The South 40

Beetle population high this summer

SOUTH 40

The Japanese beetle population was greater this year than we've observed in a long time. Many growers and homeowners attempted to control the pest with Sevin and/or beetle traps, but because of the heavy infestation control was limited at best.

The female Jap Beetle lays 40-60 eggs ½ to ½ inch in the soil. They prefer lawn or pasture areas because the larvae need the grass roots for food in order to survive.

Now is a good time to treat the lawn for grub control. From now 'til mid-September is ideal. Diazinon or Dursban are very good materials. Follow directions especially when it calls for the insecticide to be "watered in." Because of drought conditions, the lawn should be watered before and after treatment.

Antibiotic residues in meat and meat products pose a problem for producers and consumers.

There is a new testing procedure that can be used with live animals called LAST (Live Animal Swab Test). This test uses a urine sample from a live animal. If the urine is free of antibiotics, the tissue levels of antibiotics are sufficiently low to safely market and consume the meat or meat products.

* * *

Before we know it, winter time will be here. This is the time many dairy animals become housed in damp conditions. As a rule of thumb for determining whether a barn is sufficiently dry -- sit down in the pen. If your pants get wet, the bedding is too wet. Ventilation is usually the problem.

* * *

A contest among flue tobacco producers will be conducted again this year to determine the most perfect bundles of tobacco.

Rules concerning the contest are found elsewhere in this issue of the Times-Virginian.

* * *

Black shank usually shows up more frequently in hot dry weather. We have found this disease on several new farms this year. If you have tobacco dying we need to look at it and determine the cause.

To determine the approximate disease level for black shank, count the number of plants with blank shank symptoms and the total number of plants in every 10th row. Calculate the number of diseased plants by dividing the diseased plants by the total number of plants. Approximate severity levels are: Low-less than 1% plants with black shank; Moderate 1 to 5% and High-more than 5% plants showing symptoms.

Remember a few plants this year can mean high numbers in future years.

We recommend for low level use a 2-year rotation and a high resistant variety; for moderate or high levels use a 2 to 4 year totation, high resistant variety and a chemical control. There are no high resistant varieties in fire cured tobacco; therefore chemical treatment would be in order. Maintaining a soil pH at 5.5 and good nematode control are also useful.

* * *

Store white potatoes in a cool place. An unheated cellar with dirt floor is ideal.

* * *

What to do with left-over garden chemicals? Insecticides, herbicides, fungicides need to be stored in place not accessible to children and an area where they will not freeze. Be sure labels are in place. Never transfer a chemical from its original container into another container for storage or use. Never pour a pesticide or fertilizer down the drain.

The EPA has the following suggestion for homeowners wishing to dispose of small amounts of waste pesticide:

Liquid formulations in quantities of less than 1 gallon should be left in the original container. Make sure cap is securely in place to prevent spills or leaks. Wrap in several layers of newspaper and secure. This package should then be paced in a trash receptacle for routine collection.

* * *

If you have grain in storage, inspect for insect infestations. If the grain bins are empty-get them ready-clean and spray.

* * *

What about stockpiled fescue? Work in Kentucky shows that 40 pounds nitrogen will produce two-thirds as much forage as 80 pounds of N.

OFFICERS FOR THE Appomattox junior chapter of the Future Farmers of America are shown at the town FFA park viewing the site for a children's fort. The fort is one of many projects the chapter will undertake this year. Officers for this year include Rick Pack, president; T. M. Phelps, vice president; Latrese Lee, secretary; Tracy Garrett, treasurer; Zane Torrence, sentinel; Tina Grove, chaplain; Jeff Foltz, parliamentarian; Charyl Simpson, reporter, and Mike Cobb, T. W. Layne and Tim Cheatham, executive committee members.

Happiness is 4-H

By FRANK SWEET

As we begin a new 4-H year in September, the need for additional 4-H volunteer leaders becomes more pressing. 4-H parents and many other adults can provide a major service to young people by serving as a volunteer leader. Examples of ways that volunteers can be of service include: helping to organize a 4-H community club, serve as an instructor for special classes or workshops such as woodworking, child care, photography, dog care, art of many other 4-H projects or simply help with one of the major 4-H programs during the year. 4-H has a place for everyone who wants to help young people develop. Call the Appomattox Extension Office if you would like to help.

* * *

Last year's 4-H projects are due in the Extension Office by the middle of October. These individual projects are most important and each number should do their best to turn in at least one completed project each year. 4-H'ers may turn their projects in at their regular meetings or at the Extension Office.

* * *

New 4-H enrollment cards are one of the necessary evils of 4-H each year as membership records are updated in September and October of each new 4-H year. Each member is required to complete a new enrollment card each year.

Five County Fair exhibits should be taken to the Fair in Farmville on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. A schedule for entering exhibits is as follows: Monday, Septembr 12 - vegetables, crops, canned goods, crafts, woodworking, clothing, livestock, poultry, rabbits and most individual exhibit items; Wednesday, September 14: youth baked goods and flower exhibits; Thursday, September 15 adult baked goods and adult flower exhibits.

4-H members may send exhibits to the Fair by several methods. Parents may take the items (up until 8 p.m. Monday and by 12 noon on Wednesday) to the Fair or items may be brought to one of the following locations: Library of Appomattox Elementary School or Appomattox Middle School or the Appomattox Extension Office. Items should be labeled with 4-H'ers name and what class (from the catalog) the item should be entered in at the Fair. items brought to the school or Extension Office should be there by 10 a.m.

Several other good opportunities exist at the Fair including the Talent Show and Fashion Revue.

Complete details about the 1983 Five County Fair are available from the Fair catalog.

Retired teachers to meet

The Appomattox County Retired Teachers Association will meet on Tues., Sept. 6, at Our Lady of Peace Catholic Church. Please note change of location.

Lunch will be served by the ladies of the church at noon.

Mrs. Hazel Lee Martin will present the program with a discussion of the history of churches in Appomattox County.

Election of officers is in order at this meeting, so all members will please be present.
